This is even worse than the Yooman's first asser tion of equatter sovereignty. In the article which this is designed to extenuate, the Yeoman contendd, indeed, that, though the Territorial Legislatures readers know in Col. I ruey's own language, had no right to exclude slavery, Congress should perlative and superfluous absordity of denying that Congress had the right to interpose, if that body thought proper to do so. It put equatter sovereignty on the ground of expedience, or, rather, it cmitted to part it axpressly enercy, or, rather, it cmitted to part it axpressly enercy and any other ground. Now, however, the Yeoman power to an expedience of the control of the cont declares unequivocally that Congress has no right to check or control the squatters. It thinks it "bad policy" to "ADMIT" that Congress "HAS THE REGIT" to protect slave property in the Territories. all the the position is equally gratuitous and absord. It is e the excess of folly. Our neighbor of the Demoorat even has got ashamed of it and in his paper of last Saturday rejected it with an air of acorn calenlated to suggest to carelese or unsophisticated read-ers his original and unceasing hosticity to the silly and his "No one," he said, "holds that Congress cannot interfere with slavery in the legislation of the Territories." The Yeoman in its new seal for Surely this is explaining with a ven-The Yeoman says it denies "the right of the in-The Yeoman any, it denies "the right of the in-habitants of a Territory to legislate for the exclu-sion of elavery in a Territory prior to its erection in into a State;" but at the same time it asserts, that, if the inhabitants of a Territory do this, in violation of right, though it is, not only abail Congress not interpose, but it hasn't the right to do so. The Yeoman thus affirms on behalf of the inhabitants of a Territory the absolute power to do whatever they please. It maintains that although the agent stead. In other words, the Yeoman helds, ridioulone as it is, that the principal has no right to per-form what the agent has no right to neglect. So strong at last had become the faith of the Sandusky spiritualists that they agreed to submit to any test that the unbelieving might impose. Accordingly, on Saturday night last, they consented unknown to the medium, that a light should be struck in the midst of the bitherto darkened circle. On the appointed evering several doubting agentlemen were present, with their ears wide opeo and their peckets well tilled with tapers and matcher. After sitting some time in the dark, the borns that lay upon the table commerced vibrating, ascended the wall, ran along the ceiling, and finally descending, touched ranky of the persons composing the circle.
